Relatives of Mrs. Charles Wadley Pursuing a Quiet Investigation.

Trying to Determine How Such a Plain Case of Murder Was Allowed to Go Through on a Lighter Charge.

The relatives of Mrs. Charles Wadley, who died at her quarters on North Delaware street, under very suspicious circumstances, a couple of months ago, are aroused at the unusual proceedings in court by which her busband was sent to the penitentiary for three years on a plea of criminal operation. They believe that Wadley is either an innocent man or else he murdered his wife in cold blood. The extraordinary action of the grand jury, which is usually guided by the prosecuting attorney, in view of the mass of testimony before Coroner Beck, has caused the relatives to open their eyes in surprise. Wadley is presumably on his was to the penitentiary, as he was sentenced by Judge Cox a few CONFESSION WAS EVIDENTLY FALSE. There was not the least evidence to show that Wadley killed his wife by an operation, the evidence, in fact, all showing that no such operation was performed, yet Prosecuting Attorney Holtzman accepted the alleged confession made by Wadley of causing his wife's death in this manner. It is regarded as passing strange that a man would plead guilty to a crime of this kind when the evidence was overwhelming in its proof that he did not commit it, and an inference at once suggests itself to those interested. If Coroner Beck had been called before the grand jury, as they claim should have been done, he would, no doubt, have given his opinion that Mrs. Wadley died from the effect of strangulation at her husband's hands. Dr. Beck informed Dr. Divins, a brother of Mrs. Wadiey, of such intention. Yet another singular feature of this proceeding was the neglect of the prosecutor to call Coroner Back before the grand jury. The coroner had a big bundle of testimony that would have thrown a different light on the case.

If Wadley did not cause his wife's death in the manner described in his confession and in his plea of guilty, then, the relatives say, a great injustice has been done in sending him to prison for an offense that reputable physicians say was not committed. His anxiety to accept the penalty for the crime he confessed, in light of the testimony, indicates that he was apprehensive of more condign punishment for a graver crime. It will be remembered that Mrs. Wadley gied shortly after she and her husband had been dining together. The man and wife had retired to a room after leaving the dinner table, and a while later Wadley rushed out and an-nounced that his wife was dying. The circumstances were so suspicious that the coroner ordered an autopsy. A careful examination proved that no such criminal operation as Wadley afterward confessed to had been performed. The opinions of the physicians were alike, in that she died of anemia of the larynx. The coroner followed the case up so closely that Wadley finally made the alleged confession, admitting he brought about her death in the manner to which reference has been made. The coroner had been informed that quarrels between Wadley and his wife were frequent, and that Wadley seemed to be the aggressor in these affairs.

Dr. Hesler stated last night that he was very much surprised at the procedure in the Criminal Court. He was positive that Wadley was innocent of the crime with which he was charged in the court record after sentence. Dr. Hesler conducted the autopsy, and was also before the grand jury, where he gave evidence in line with the developments at the autopsy.

STATEMENT OF DR. DIVENS. Dr. C. W. Divens, a brother-in-law of Wadley, is greatly surprised and also in dignantat the manner in which the case was handled by Prosecutor Holtzman. He insists that there was not the slightest evidence to show that Mrs. Wadley was killed in the way which Wadley claims in his confession. Dr. Divens also makes a statement which indicates a very peculiar proceeding in the grand jury room, to say the

"Dr. Beck told me," said he "that he had all his evidence in the case locked up in his safe, and that the grand jury did not call for it at all. He also told me that his verdict would be that Mrs. Wadley's death was caused by anemia of the larynx, and, if further called upon, would add that this was probably caused, as he believed from the evidence, by her husband strangling her. The coroner also told me a day or two ago that he was ready and willing to further investigate the matter. This action of the grand jury and the after prosecution of Wadley on the malpractice indictment seems very strange. There is a slip in it somewhere. I understand that the grand jury only heard the evidence of Dr. Hesler, and that he testined that death was caused by anemia of the larnyx, volunicering no theory as to the circumstances, however. It is absurd to say that she was killed by a criminal operation, as the autopsy showed not the slightest evidence of this claim. I reached her house within a half hour after she died and remained there until the autopsy was held At the autopsy were Drs. Hesler, Young, Rudy, Coroner Beck, Mr. Buchanan and myself. A most searching examination was made, with the suspicion of malpractice in view, and it was conclusive that a criminal operation had not been performed. It seemed perfectly clear to me and to the other physicians, I believe, that death was caused by strangulation. If Wadley did not strangle her, then he has not had justice, for in this malpractice case he is undoubtedly innocent. Dr. Beck also told me that he had his verdict in the safe, and that the grand jury did not call for it. I was summoned before the grand jury, but before I could get down to the courthouse the body had adjourned, so I was unable to give my testimony. I understand that the case can be reopened with a view of returning an indictment for murder in the first degree, and I shall try to find out why the grand jury ignored the evidence obtained by the coroner.

WHAT HOLTZMAN HAS TO SAY. Prosecutor Holtzman was seen and asked about the disposition of the case, and made some rather peculiar answers to the questions asked him. A Journal reporter called upon him at his office, and asked him why it was that the grand jury returned an indietment for a criminal operation, instead of the graver offense of murder.

"It was simply a question of the indict-ment that was returned, or none at all," replied Mr. Holtzman. "What do you mean by that?"
"I mean that there was no evidence upon which to base an indictment for mur-

"Was there any upon which to base an indictment for the crime for which he was "Did not the physicians testify that there was no evidence that a criminal operation had been performed? "They did; but Wadley confessed to having performed one." "Is it not possible, or even probable, that a man accused of crime would confess to the lesser crime to avoid punishment for a "Well, you will have to see Mr. Cox as to what the evidence before the grand jury was. All I know about it is what he tells He came to me at the last session of the grand jury and told me that it was very improbable that an indictment would be returned against Wadley. I told him that he had better continue the case for awhile and see what could be done, as Wadley was willing to plead guilty to the erime for which he was afterward in-

"Then he was indicted for a crime of which he was not guilty, according to the evidence adduced against him, because he had signified a willingness to plead guilty

see Mr. Cox, showing a dislike to shouldering the responsibility himself.

DEPUTY COX'S STATEMENT. Deputy Prosecutor Cox was seen at his bome last night, and, being informed of what Holtzman has said, was asked if the statements were correct. Mr. Cox said: "Holtzman was mistaken about the case being continued at his request. It was continued by me for the purpose of securing additional testimony. The physicians testified that the death of Mrs. Wadley was probably due to acute edema of the larnyx, caused by a severe cold. all asked them about the confession of Wadley, and if death might not have been due to the causes alleged in his confession. They said that it was possible, but not "Then was the indictment returned against a man whom the evidence failed to show guilty simply because of his willingness to plead guilty?" "No. The evidence of the physicians tending to discredit his confession only went to the one case. In his confession he admitted to having been guilty of the same thing at six different times, one of which was within the statute of limitations." "Was there no evidence before the grand jury tending to substantiate the murder "No. The physicians testified that there were no marks upon her throat indicating that she had been choked. The children did testify that there were marks upon her throat, but they also testified that these resembled marks upon her face which bad been there for years and were not made by glad to be permitted to plead guilty to the crime for which he was indicted and thus escape the graver crime?" "It did; I thought of that phase of the case and considered it carefully, but came to the conclusion that such was not the case. I believe his confession was produced solely by remorse of conscience." Mr. Cox said that he believed had the case come to trial that Wadley could not have been convicted in the face of the testimony of the physicians, who would only admit that it was possible, but not probable, that death had been caused as stated in the confession, and that there was no evidence whatever to support the murder

Died in Convulsions, John W. Wilson, of Plainfield, died while in convulsions, yesterday morning, at No. 88 West Garden street, where he was staying a few days with friends. A year ago Wilson had both his arms cut off by a feed cutter, and has since suffered from the peculiar malady which caused his death. It was thought by the family that there might be a doubt of life being extinct, and Deputy Coroner Carey was called to examine the body. It appears that Wilson's wife had recently filed a suit against Plainfield druggists for $10,000, claiming that the defendants had sold her husband liquor, which was the cause of the accident wherein he lost his arms.

IT WILL NOT REORGANIZE

Republican State Committee Not Likely to Be Called Together Till January.

Chairman Gowdy Decides Not to Resign-Gerrymander Snit to Be Brought at Once and Pushed to a Conclusion.

Chairman John K. Gowdy, of the Republican State central committee, was in the city yesterday in consultation with a couple of members of the executive committee, W. T. Durbin, M. G. McLain and Secretary Millikan. The subject under discussion was the suit to set aside the infamous gerrymander law which was enacted by the last Legislature in defiance of the decision of the Supreme Court, declaring such legislation contrary to the Constitution. The committeemen were unanimous that the suit should be begun as early as is feasible with certainty in every step taken. One of the arguments used by the Democrats in the discussion before the Supreme Court in the litigation last year was that the plaintiffs had waited too long before bringing the suit, and that there was not time for a fair and just determination of the subject before the election. "Did it not occur to you that if Wadley had murdered his wife he would be very The Republicans believed that it was proper to bring the suit just when the act was imminent, the proceedings being of an injunctive nature. It is not believed that because the Democratic counsel used the argument then of insufficient time, that they will be estopped now from using the contrary argument in the forthcoming litigation. If they did, it would be an act utterly inconsistent with their former disposition to fight the case upon any flimsy pretext. This contingency is said to be among those which the committee has to consider. At the conference yesterday it was decided to intrust the litigation to Mr. Ferd Winter and Mr. A. W. Wishard. who handled the former case with great success and credit. It was not decided in what county to bring the suit, this being left to the legal gentlemen in charge of the matter. The particular county, however, will be made known in a very short time, > of the committee, Mr. Gowdy said: "There is an almost universal demand among the Republicans of the State that this suit be begun without further delay. The party. as a whole, wants to know what the constitutional limit is to this thing of strangling a large part of the vote of the State. If it is legal and constitutional to deprive a great portion of our people of their right to be heard at the ballot box, we want to know it. If it is so decided by this Supreme Court, then there are other things of vital importance to the State to be pressed upon the attention of the voters. The decision closing this litigation will declare whether we live in a State securing free and equal rights to all. It will tell whether the brigand age of politics, as practiced by the Democrats of the State, is to be the rule of action for the party having the plurality of votes. The Republican party is opposed to such a condition of things, and means to keep up this fight until every legal voter has one honest vote which is fairly counted. By no other means can the people rule. Take for an example the last Legislature. In spite of all that the people could do, the Legislature wasted its time in passing bills for which there was no demand, which in many cases were offered with corrupt motive, and by reason of the inferior men elected under the gerrymander system were log-rolled through to enactment. For many years this gerrymandered body was not able to handle the finances of the State, and authorized loan after loan for the purpose of paying interest. The gerrymander made the presence of such a man as Mc-Hugh in the Senate possible. He was never elected to the trust, but, having a majority of political friends in the Senate, he was seated after a contest decided on the basis of party power secure from popular indignation, because the people's hands were bound under a gerrymander. The whole mass of bad legislation and bad financiering since the Democracy has had control of the Legislature has not been within the power of the people. has not been within the power of the peopointment, scattering their might. It to time for the gerrymander to go. I think its days are numbered. I believe the present court is an honorable and just one, and will decide the law upon the point." "Will the State committee be called to gether?" was asked. "No," was the reply. "I do not deem it necessary to issue a call for a meeting of the committee. The secretary will communicate with each member, and in this way the expense of a meeting can properly be avoided. This action will, I am sure, meet with approval, since there is no other work for the committee to do at this time."

In speaking of the case after the meeting

"I has been suggested that you will resign from the committee for the purpose of allowing an early reorganization. Is this "It was my intention so to do, but since it was decided to push the gerrymander suit immediately, for which there seems to be a general demand upon the part of Republicans, as I was chairman when the first suit was brought I believe it my duty to continue as chairman until the case is decided, at least in the lower court, My term will expire in any event on Jan. 10, and for this reason I will, perhaps, bold on until that time. If the apportionment is overthrown there will be an excellent chance of making the next Legislature Republican, and no time will be it st in putting the State in the best possible condition for my successor to carry out the work to a Successful conclusion."

One of Taggart's Favorites.

There was much comment yesterday among the local Democrats concerning the appointment of James I. Parker, from Tipton, to a place at Washington when the old party wheel-horse, Dr. Pitzer, still waits for the commission he so much desires. Dr. Pitzer has been in Washington since the inauguration, and has spent hundreds of dollars in living there in the quest for the place. It is hardly possible that two federal appointments will go to a town no larger than Tipton, and Dr. Pitzer's friends say he might as well come Lome and save further loss of time and money. The appointment of Parker was not solicited by him, but he had the favor of Chairman Taggart, which is supposed to be of magic influence at Washington in the distribution of Indiana patronage. Dr. Pitzer's friends are beginning to look daggers whenever Mr. Taggart's name is mentioned. There are a number of other disappointed applicants for office in the federal service who believe that the hand that stood between them and their desires belonged to the State chairman. There will be some old scores to settle in the future.

Mr. Bradley's Visit.

Hon. W. O. Bradley, the sturdy Kentucky Republican, was in the city yesterday, on his way home from Martinsville, where he has been taking baths for rheumatism. He has been one of the Republican standard-bearers in the Blue-grass State for many years, and has the admiration of all members of the party. He declined to talk politics yesterday, saying that his visit to the State was wholly for another

For sixteen years she has been an invalid, and, in moving about from place to place, she has to be trans-ported in baggage-cars. In this manner she soon had a strong interest in railroa men and their work. In 1880 she was healed by prayer, and since that time she has devoted her life to work among railroad men.

FELL FROM THE SECOND STORY.

Baby's Awful Tumble to the Pavement Below -The Accident Not Fatal. About 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon Josephine McCoy, the two-year-old daughter of Mrs. Mary McCoy, residing at the corner of

New York and Budd streets, met with an accident which was witnessed with horror by those in the vicinity, but happily was not attended with fatal effect. The McCoy family occupy a two-story house, and on Thursday afternoon Mrs. McCoy was seated in the front room of the upper story busy with her sewing, while the child played about the apartment. The windows were raised, and the screens, unknown to the mother, had been removed.

Little Josephine, in an unguarded moment, strayed to the window, and, attracted by the life and bustle below, climbed upon the ledge. Mrs. McCoy saw the action, but before she could reach the opening the child toppled and fell. The agonized mother heard the little one strike the brick pavement, and ran screaming down stairs, expecting the worst. The child lay upon the walk where she had fallen, and upon the walk where she had fallen, and was carried into the house and a physician hurriedly summoned. The injuries were very serious, and consisted of a fractured thigh and dislocated hip, which, although intensely painful, can be treated success-

Wanted at Terre Haute for Burglary. George Pinnell, who was fined by the police judge a few days ago for carrying concealed weapons while watching the Alabama-street sewer, was rearrested last night and locked up on the fugitive charge. Pinnell's arrest was made on a telegram received from the chief of police of Terre Haute, stating that the prisoner is wanted in that city for burglary. Pinnell was formerly employed in the Vandalia freight department of that city, and it seems left there abruptly. He will be held until the arrival of the Terre Haute officials. He claims that he is not guilty of the charge and says that he is a victim of a concocted scheme to keep him behind the bars.

Hot Metal in His Eyes. John Scroggins, an employe of the Cleaveland Fence Company, was painfully and seriously injured at the company's plant, yesterday afternoon, by the splashing of a pot of hot metal which he was chilling.
The metal scalded his breast and splattered into his eyes. He will probably lose the sight of his left eye. Dr. Carl Barnes relieved him of much of his agony.
